Houchins wins a round in flap over Santa Rita

Alameda County Bureau

OAKLAND — County supervisors turned down a compromise bid proposed by their chairman that would have opened the controversial Santa Rita jail to the press.

In a 3-2 vote, following terse exchanges between County Sheriff Thomas L. Houchins and board chairman Fred Cooper, the board voted the board went against a measure that would have started a pilot program allowing press interviews with sentenced inmates.

Houchins said he would "not allow (the press) in, even if you adopt this motion."

Public television station KQED is suing the county over a ban on newsmen at the facility. Under the current program, the press is allowed in twice monthly for public tours, and on regular visiting days.

Federal Judge Oliver Carter ruled last November against the sheriff's policy. The ban on random interviews and the use of cameras and tape recorders is not justified, he said. The ruling is being appealed.

Houchins said, "The litigation should be completed," rather than circumvented through Cooper's compromise.

But Cooper charged Houchins with advancing similar offers in closed-door discusions with KQED. "You made these compromises to KQED, but you're not willing to go that way with the board," he charged

"If you want to make this a political issue, that's your perrogative," Houchins countered.

"He (Houchins) is an elected official and we shouldln't tell him how to do his job," said valley supervisor John D. Murphy.

"We should look at providing the where - with - all for him to run the jail, not how to run the jail."

Cooper said opening the jail, condemned by Federal Judge Alphonso Zirpoli and the Alameda County Grand Jury, will show the people, "Justification for spending $5 million to replace it."

North county supervisor Tom Bates joined Cooper in the vote, claiming he thinks it "appropriate that the press be allowed in there."

Bus cutback rocks Pleasanton parents

PLEASANTON— Parents of students interested in the agricultural program at Amador Valley High School are protesting the planned discontinuance of buses from 10 sections of the city to the school.

Copies of the protest letter, complete with the signatures of 21 parents in the Sycamore, Alisal and Happy Valley Road areas, have been sent to Dr. Bruce Newlin, superintendent of the Amador Valley Joint High School District, County Schools Superintendent Rock LaFleche, Superintendent of Public Instruction Wilson Riles, as well as Amador principal Ralph Laird and agriculture teachers Ray Morton and Philip Pierpont.

The protest follows a letter sent to parents in early May by Gloria Jones, coordinator of pupil personnel services for Amador-Pleasanton schools.

In the letter, Mrs. Jones stated, "As you are aware, with the intra-district transfers parents must accept the responsibility of providing transportation to the desired school.

"I have been informed that next school year (1976-77) the buses to Amador High School from the following areas will be discontinued: From Pleasanton Meadows and West Las Positas, Highland Oaks and Stoneridge, from Tassajara Road, Castlewood, Sunol, Sycamore and Happy Valley and Del Prado."

The letter to parents who might be affected continued, "If you can provide your student's transportation and you have completed an intra-district transfer form, your student may continue attending the school of your choice— if enrollment figures permit.

"If transportation will not be provided by you for your student and it means a change of schools, may I recommend that you contact the school of attendance for 1976-77 school year as soon as possible for scheduling purposes.

"If there are any questions, please call my office— 462-4225."

Th parent response deals largely with students in or wishing to be part of the agricultural program at Amador Valley High.

"We protest the discontinuance of a school bus to Amador from Sycamore, Alisal, Happy Valley Road area for thp following reasons," the letter opens:

1. It makes no sense to any of us to offer an agricultural program at Amador High School and require the country children to attend Foothill High School, the school without the agricultural program. Most of the families involved moved to the country so their children could take full advantage of country living combined with an agricultural education in the school. In some cases ranching and farming is their way of life. So, if our children are required to attend Amador for this part of their education, it is only fair that busing should be provided.

2. By eliminating the busing, it will be next to impossible for our children to attend Amador and continue in the Agriculture program. We feel this is discrimination against our children.

3. The busing should not be discontinued until a complete agricultural program is offered at Foothill High School.

4. If some busing has to be eliminated due to lack of funds, lets eliminate busing the teams to the sporting events and in any other areas where only occasional driving by their parents would be required. Why discriminate against rural children due to lack of funds?

The letter is signed by 21 parents who give addresses on Alisal, Sycamore, Happy Valley Road, Castledown, Drywood and Knollbrook.

Sear's store will bolster tax revenues

PLEASANTON — A Sear's Store which will boost the city's sales tax revenues by 10 per cent was announced yesterday by Councilman Frank Brandes who was instrumental in landing the store.

Brandes, a controller for Sear's in Oakland, said that after he was elected to the council he decided to talk to the "biggest retailer in the world," about coming to town.

The result, a 5,000-square foot catalogue and appliance store will open early in the fall in one of three new buildings to be constructed at Santa Rita Road near Valley Avenue. Developer is Ted Myers.

The store will do about 3 to 4 million dollars in gross sales each year, said Brandes. That will translate to 30 to 40 thousand dollars in sales tax revenue to the city, he said.

"This is a signed, sealed contract, not just a promise," said Brandes "I talked to the Sear's people in L.A. and suggested a catalogue store for Pleasanton. They had never thought of that before, but figured it was a good idea. Now the many Sear's customers in Pleasanton won't have to go to adjacent communities, but can keep sales tax dollars in the community."

San Ramon put Eric up front

MARTINEZ — Eric Hasseltine's strong lead in unincorporated areas, including his home area of the San Ramon Valley, was decisive in his leading the fifth district supervisorial race Tuesday.

Hasseltine and Louise Giersch of Antioch will run off for the seat in the November general election.

In the third district, Robert Schroder of Walnut Creek and Geno Banducci of Orinda will be in the run-off, while in the second district, Nancy Fahden of Martinez defeated outright veteran incumbent Al Dias of El Sobrante.

Hasseltine earned 8,526 votes in fifth district unincorporated areas, compared to 4,747 for Ms. Giersch and 1,718 for Earl MacIntyre of Pittsburg.

State award for Lab's work

Successful handicap training

LIVERMORE — In recognition of its efforts to help the mentally handicappd perform meaningful and responsible work, Lawrence Livermore Laboratory received Awards of Merit from the California State Department of Rehabilitation at a ceremony here yesterday.

Since 1973, more than 40 contract jobs for LLL have been performed by mentally retarded men and women enrolled in vocational training programs conducted by the Alameda County Association for the Mentally Retarded.

Cited by the Department of Rehabilitation for special praise was the lab's full-time contract with the Mobile Service Bike Team, a group of mentally handicapped people who perform on-site repair of the more than 700 bicycles LLL maintains for employes' use.

In presentimg LLL with the department's Employer Participation Award, administrator Barbara Tyson called the contract an examgle of "real employment opportunity for mentally handicapped people."

Because of the lab's efforts, Tyson said, "four people previously out of the labor force, four people who did not perceive themselves as contributors, now have been put into the work force and provide a real service."

Tyson said it is through cooperation with employers and associations such as the Alameda County Association for the Mentally Retarded that great strides are made. "We can't go it alone," she remarked.

David Hans, director of the Mobile Services Unit, thanked LLL for their participation. "These contracts are our tools. They enable mentally handicapped persons to use their skills and move into society as independent and self-respecting individuals."

Hans said the mentally handicapped do not ask for hacd-outs. "The handicapped are prepared to take the same responsibilities as other employes, but a lot of what they can do is dependent upon community support. We need some help — the stepping stones — to do the work. We don't operate in a vacuum," he said.

Other contract jobs are performed by mentally handicapped persons at the Garnet Austin Work Activity Center in Livermore. Geared to the capabilities of the workers, the tasks include photostatic copying, collating and arranging documents, updating electronics manuals, sorting parts, envelope stuffing, and trimming plastic parts.

LLL has farmed out contracts to Garnet Austin since 1974, with succpssful results.

Jim Narris, a procurement specialist in LLL's Procurement and Supply Department that coordinates the outside contracts, said LLL has been "very pleased and impressed" with the results.

County, union talks lag

Strike team arrested in Oakland sit-in

OAKLAND — Seventeen striking county employes, including a blind social worker who joined the brigade at the last moment, were arrested and taken from Board of Supervisor Chairman Fred Cooper's private law offices last night after Cooper refused to meet there with them and negotiate.

Union leaders also spelled out what they called "union busting tactics" presented in Wednesday's first face-to-face negotiations between the board and labor leaders.

Cooper had called a 4 p.m. negotiation session yesterday in the Board of Supervisors' chambers after he learned of the sit in at his Law offices. But union negotiator John Bowers, who was arrested in the group, said his team would not cross picket lines and meet on county property. The negotiation session was to be open to the press and general public.

The union had reserved two rooms at the Leamington Hotel six blocks from Cooper's law office, and, threatening "to escalate the strike" said they wanted to start "meaningful negotiations immediately."

Eighteen members of the union's negotiating team settled in Cooper's eighth floor office at the Tribune Tower at 11:30 a.m. to await Copper after what Bowers called "the absolute bust" of Wednesday's negotiation session.

The strikers, arrested for trespassing, spent seven hours in the reception room to a suite of law offices.

Both Cooper and Bowers agreed no progess was made in Wednesday's talks.

But the union now claims the county's contract demands call for a "modified agency shop" that shows the board's "overriding desire to bust the unions."

The board's proposal reportedly includes a no-strike clause and provisions for county employes to drop union membership voluntarily next month instead of only during April. The county also no longer would deduct union dues from pay checks.

Cooper charged the unions with "making this a public spectacle through a media event.... Either they don't want to negotiate or they don't want to negotiate publicly."

His face red and his voice cracking, Cooper said "The union gave passes (to cross picket lines) to four judges and one supervisor. They can give themselves passes."

North county supervisor Tom Bates moved his offices to Assemblyman Ken Meade's downtown Oakland office during the strike. Bates is in a run-off for Meade's post in the November general election.

The Board of Supervisors "will meet only here and only in public" in future negotiations, Cooper said, although union representatives may contact county negotiator Jim Marshall for closed door meetings.

"We don't want to make this a public spectacle," said Rhoda Ellenbogen, a union woman who said she was speaking "straight off the cuff." I was not sent by the union."

"We are ready and willing to negotiate at any time. It is totally untrue that the union won't negotiate."

Meanwhile, the county lost an attempt to withhold strikers' monies from today's paycheck.

Superior Court Judge Lyle E. Cook granted a temporary restraining order to stop the county from withholding funds advanced to employes last year when the county changed from monthly pay to biweekly paychecks.

In making the switch last summer, the county advanced its employes 78 per cent of two weeks pay so that they would not have gone four weeks and received two weeks salary.

According to attorneys for the uhion, that agreement calls for repayment either in small amounts or when an employe is about to leave county service.

Under Judge Cook's order the unions must post a $50,000 bond payable to the county in the event they default.

The sit-ins, who were to be cited and released last night, include Bowers, Sherry Stevenson, a blind social worker, union officials Dave Watkins, Dave Kramer and Jerry Zellhoefer, and union members Bonnie Coe, Cathy Tuley, Alice Brumfield, Iru Kestin, John Steen, Fred Beal, Mildred Mosley, Corean Smith, Pete Albert, Jay Levine and Paul Demeduk.

Murray paying up to $500 for demographic predictions

DUBLIN— The consultant hired to look into the Murray School District's future growth patterns will receive up to $500 for a demographic study over the next five weeks. District board members are apparently unaware of how much the man is to receive.

Trustees approved the idea of hiring a consultant about six weeks ago but, according to board president Dr. Ted Woy, left the setting of the fee and agreement up to Dr. Donald Williams, district superintendent.

Williams returned to work yesterday after being out some 10 days with a mild relapse of a heart ailment he incurred in early March.

The agreement between the district and Alan Richards of Orinda was consummated by Williams and assistant superintendent Heinz Gewing some weeks ago. Richards has been in the district once since then. He is slated to be at the Citizens Advisory Committee meeting Wednesday at Frederiksen School.

Richards reportedly will gather data after meetings with real estate, Valley Community Services District and other community representatives. He will present the data in summary form and the board could then make any decisions or procedural changes it felt were indicated by Richards.

Gewing said Wednesday it is entirely possible Richards might find it necessary to spend additional time in the district, which would mean additional fees.

The CAC and Richards would work cooperatively to some degree but their final reports will be separate and both will probably include suggestions and/or recommendations.

Woy said Thursday it is possible one or both might include recommendation of another bond issue next November or March.

In another development, it was learned that some concern has surfaced over Williams' ailments and consequent absence from the district. However, no official discussions have been held on this matter....though one Murrayite believes it would have to be if such unavoidable repetitions occur again in the coming six months.

Armstrong grads greet future

Principal Howard Nemir gathers with part of "the original 20" at Neil Armstrong School in San Ramon.

SAN RAMON — Seven years ago 120 bright and shining little faces walked tentatively into Neil Armstrong School to begin their education as kindergarten students.

Some time after Walt Disney School opened and, with the normal number that either moved away or transferred, the number dwindled to 66.

Of the original 120, though, 20 remained to become the first group to ever attend all seven grades, K-6, at Armstrong.

The 20 said goodbye to their teachers and principal Howard Nemir, who came to Armstrong with them seven years ago, yesterday — the last day of school for 1975-76.

Nemir, incidentally, will also be leaving the pretty little school on Calais Drive for a new assignment as director of the Early Childhood Education program in the San Ramon Valley Unified School District.

Nemir will be honored at a party this morning at the school by staff members. Following the faculty meeting, teachers and staff will gather to salute the one and only principal the school has had.

Dorothy Toll, a reading specialist, will make the presentation on behalf of the group.

Of the 20 graduating from Armstrong, 15 will go on to California High School to attend the seventh grade in the fall, two will transfer to Los Cerros, two to Charlotte Wood and one is moving to Denver, Colo.

The students were members of the classes of Michael Shackelford and Vince Lazo. They include Aaron Bodnar, Matt Thompson, Todd Clark, Matt Fisher, Victor Cardinale, Garth Falk, Victoria Eris, Susan McDonald, Tammy Morgan, Debra Weigart, Corey Hayward, Ronald Nanini, Fred Young, Jackie Abrams, Kristin Pettersen, Laura Baer, Catherine Burke, Cathy Cordtz, Sharon Goodman, and Matt Stott.

Principal Nemir appointed to ECE coordinator post

SAN RAMON— Howard Nemir, principal at Neil Armstrong Elementary School, was appointed Early Childhood Education coordinator at Monday night's San Ramon Valley Unified School District board meeting.

Nemir will be the first one to hold the position. The program is run on state guidelines and concentrates on kindergarten through third grade children.

A replacement for Nemir is now being sought. Armstrong is one of three K-6 schools in the south end of the district.

Superintendent Alan Petersdorf noted, in regards to the planned intermediate grades school for South San Ramon, that it will probably be beyond capacity when it opens in September of 1977. The school will house seventh and eighth graders and some sixth graders, for a projected enrollment of 880 or 30 more than the planned maximum.

The school, at Pine Valley and Broadmoor, has been named "Pine Valley Intermediate School."

The school board received a letter from Judith A. Wood, past president of the Neil Armstrong PTA, requesting attention be given to the need for the school to be a three-year facility.

As now planned, it will take some but not all sixth graders from the southern area.

Mike Halloran, director of pupil services, told trustees the district is continuing contract negotiations with Valley Community Services District for the operation of the Olympic pool at California High School.

Several problems relating to the contract have yet to be resolved

School board members received a petition, signed by 350 members of the San Ramon Valley Education Association, asking the board to agree to certain salary and benefits requests.

The board also received correspondence from four members of the San Ramon chapter of the American Federation of Teachers regarding the need for a cost of living salary increase.

Despite the continued protestations of approximately 30 residents, the trustees voted to close Love Lane in Danville and send the recommendation on to the Contra Costa County Board of Supervisors.

Trustees also received an additional compensation proposal from the teachers' Certificated Employees Council. The CEC is asking that head counselors be paid on the basis of the teacher's salary schedule with a factor of 1.15 plus the master's degree School psychologists would be paid on the basis of the teacherssalary schedule with a factor of 1.20 plus the master's degree. Driver training teachers would be paid at the same hourly rate as summer school teachers.

Natasha Cole, an English teacher at San Ramon Valley High, was appointed director of the executive intern program for high school students.

In introductory statements to the $6,923,870 capital improvements budget, City Manager Bill Parness points out the budget's revenue sourcps are "all from special or restricted accruals which mandate how the monies can be spent. It will be noted that most of these revenue sources are from state and federal grants or subventions."

He also cautions, "Even though a rather substantial sum is listed for expenditure, to a great extent this is for account planning only. Invariably many of the projects will not proceed past the planning stage during the year...."

Listed under the parks and beautification fund for open space is $3,700 for the acquisition of minor property segments for additions to the Quezaltenango Trialway; $35,000 for a neighborhood park in the Wagoner Farms area (funded by park dedication fees); $527,000 for nine projects to extend the Medeiros Parkway ($141,000 will be derived from a state grant); $21,000 for an addition to Pioneer Park; $10,000 for an addition to the community park and civic center; $10,000 for the Murrieta bikeway; $24,500 for Springtown Golf Course green area buffer, and $15,000 for an addition to Max Baer Park.

Under the parkway and bikeway improvements category of the parks and beautification fund, $12,000 is earmarked for phase 11 of the Madeiros Parkway bike trail improvement (1,700 feet west of Arroyo Road to Arroyo Road); $20,000, Murrieta Boulevard bike trail improvements (Olivina to E. Stanley Boulevard), and $297,700 for park improvements. Another $10,000 is set aside for miscellaneous improvements — litter containers, kiosk, city participation in the multi-service center building landscaping and facade of The Barn, and Hansen Park walkways.

A total of $7,000 is designated for on-street bikeway signing and striping with another $7,000 for the East Avenue bikeway right-of-way acquisitions (north side of the street) and improvements.

Projects listed under street repair and reconstruction include $40,000 for the Fourth Street connection to realigned First Strept right-of-way acquisition; $50,000, street resurfacing; $100,000, city participation in the railroad assessment district for the relocation project; $236,000 (the net cost of the city will be $59,000), S. L Street reconstruction from Fifth Strept to College Avenue; $200,000 (net cost to the city will be $50,000), Maple Street reconstrcution from First Street to East Avenue; $100,000, (net cost to city will be $17,000), widening of E. Stanley Boulevard; $125,000 (net cost to city will be $29,500), acquisition of right-of-way for the widening of E. Stanley Boulpvard; $50,000, acquisition of right-of-way and preliminary engineering for the realignment of First Street, and $71,000, city participation in the extention of Railroad Avenue from P Street to E. Stanley Boulevard.

The $469,000 earmarked for the multi-service center includes $432,000 for the actual construction and $37,000 for architectural services. The project will be funded through federal funds in the Housing and Community Development Act.

Total preliminary 1976-77 budget for the City of Livermore is $14,190,480. Copies of the $6.9 million capital improvements budget as well as the $7.2 million operating budget are available for review at City Hall and the Livermore Library.

Budget study sessions will be held by the city council on the Saturdays of June 19 and 26 in the library.

Water agencies ponder revised pipeline cost

LIVERMORE — Refined cost estimates for the Livermore Amador Valley Water Management Agency (LAVWMA) effluent disposal pipeline indicate that from $5.7 to $9.6 million in bonds may have to be secured at the local level to fund the project.

Those estimates based on an average flow pipe size were presented to the LAVWMA board yesterday by financial consultant Ernie Bodnar of Stone and Youngberg.

At best Bodnar said $5.7 million in bonds would be required figuring on a 12 per cent annual inflation rate and on maximum federal and state grant funding.

At worst, figuring on an 18 per cent annual inflation rate and minimum federal and state funding, $9.6 million in bonds would be needed.

Under state mandate to stop discharging wastes down the Alameda Creek and faced with the sobering prospects that voters may turn down the bonds in November, LAVWMA directors discussed alternative strategies.

The board could proceed with the presently proposed revenue bond issue. It could amend the joint powers agreement between the LAVWMA member agencies, making it unecessary to bring the bonds before the voters. Or, it could issue the bonds without a vote subject to later voter referendum.

It was the consensus of the board to make preparations to put the issue on the November ballot while at the same time sound out the member agencies on amending the joint powers agreement.

Can this troika make it go?

The fireworks are over. Three new men will take their places this July as members of the Zone 7 Board of Directors.

Gib Marguth, Ed Kinney and Archer Futch have emerged victors in a hard-fought, often bitter campaign. Now that the voters have indicated their preferences, it's time for the directors-elect to join the board and get down to work.

Zone 7 remains under a directive from the Bay Area Sewage Services Agency to develop a working arrangement with the Livermore - Amador Valley Water Management Agency. Let's hope those candidates' promises to work for valley harmony were more than campaign rhetoric.

Readdressing the memo of understanding with LAVWMA, the new directors will soon tackle the controversial question of Zone 7's role in sewage treatment and transport.

As candidates, Marguth and Kinney went on record favoring the zone's entry into the "sewer business," while Futch declared his opposition to it.

Now as zone directors, these three former mayors will have to leave their regional differences behind and make difficult decisions that will serve the total interests of the valley.

Zone aspirant Don Miller was a target this campaign, and his opponents have hit the mark. But Miller raised some important points the zone board should consider in the coming year.

The zone, Miller charged, has been stockpiling connection fees to pay for future expansions to the water treatment system. Water users have had to carry the burden of retiring the Del Valle Water Treatment Plant bonds.

There's disagreement among current zone directors on the truth of Miller's assertion. But the public can profit by a reexamination of the zone's policies on who pays for what and why. It's a mystery that deserves clarification.

Futch and other candidates suggested that the zone financial budget is difficult to decipher, and some current board members agree. So a review of the zone's financial accounting format seems in order.

All candidates agreed that this year's election would be critical to the valley's future. Voters have given Marguth, Kinney and Futch important responsibilities.

Leaving rancor behind them, we hope they will be equal to the task.

Down to cases

Short of total victory, voters in the First Supervisorial District gave John Murphy and Valerie Raymond what they wanted — a chance to face each other in a one-on-one race this November.

Murphy was the issue in the primary campaign. The three active challengers — Raymond of Livermore, and Irene Vincent and Rob Alves of Fremont — hammered away at his accessibility and responsiveness in his 16 years in office.

And in netting 64 per cent of the vote between them, the challengers showed that there is some dissatisfaction with Murphy's incumbency.

Whittled down to a two-candidate race, voters in the valley and Fremont will have a chance to indicate how strong that dissatisfaction is.

Murphy said before the primary that it would make better sense to have one opponent instead of four. He thinks the run-off will be a more knowledgeable contest, an opportunity to talk issues rather than personalities.

Running only 5 percentage points behind Murphy, Raymond has shown that her candidacy is no fluke based on her last-minute success in 1972. In the four intervening years, Raymond has been working for the right to meet the incumbent head-on.

To win, both candidates will need to do more — and less — of the kind of campaigning they did during the primary race.

Raymond walked the First District, visiting 12,000 homes. Murphy has called himself a public servant who works "without fanfare." He might be better served by getting out among the public, not simply letting his record speak for himself, but speaking out himself in support of his own record.

And Raymond should present her own platform, billing herself as a strong leader in her own right, not merely an alternative to Murphy.

By taking a positive approach, both candidates will give voters a clear basis on which to cast their vote ballots this November.

Heed wishes of youth

Editor, The Times:

I find it very interesting that the Pleasanton Times gave front-page coverage to Mrs. Clark's anti-Las Positas Overpass petition bearing 35 signatures. (June 4, 1976) A pro-Las Positas Overpass petition presented by Foothill High School bearing 110 signatures was covered in only one sentence within another story. Are adult signatures really that much more important than student signatures?

The adult community encourages young people to take an interest and become involved in the affairs of our community. They urge us to act in an adult manner. Yet when we decide to take this advice, we find that we are expected to play by a different set of rules. When we take the initiative and become involved in an issue, the encouragement ends the moment we begin to disagree with the adult point of view.

After receiving a letter from Mayor Philcox in response to our stand at a recent City Council meeting (May 24, 1976) I wasn't sure if I should be complimented or insulted when he asked that I call him "before considering any action that will undermine the many years of efforts this city has undergone to plan for the financially difficult years ahead." An adult's interest would have been considered good citizenship, yet a student's interest was considered a threat to the city's welfare.

I think it is time that the city of Pleasanton, as well as the newsmen, recognize the constructive efforts of the young people of our community. Are we to believe that City Manager Bill Edgar expresses the majority opinion when he says, "I have enough trouble with hairbrain politicians, What do I need with teenagers?"

FOCUS/County Fair

Bad vibrations

The Bicentennial edition of the Alameda County Fair, a multimillion dollar event, is in some danger today of being cancelled.

A final decision on cancellation, should the strike and attendant picketing continue on through next week, will be made at 10 a.m. on Friday, June 18 by the executive committee of the County Fair Association Board of Directors.

Any cancelling of the Fair, or just the racing portion, would be a severe blow (but certainly not a crippling one) to the economy of the East Bay Area and to the valley imparticular.

I find the actions of the unions and the Horsemens Benevolent and Protective Association (HBPA) narrow and difficult to understand. Granted, we are viewing the situations largely from the local Fair standpoint....but it is still difficult to see how the good of the whole will be helped to any degree by the actions of a relative few.

As mentioned in a news article yesterday, a cancellation of the Fair and the race meeting could cause a loss in revenues of approximately $2.5 million.

The Alameda County Fair Association has already spent more than $350,000 in preparation for the Bicentennial edition, scheduled from June 27 to July 11.

None of the figures cited include the loss of revenues that might be incurred by valley businesses....the restaurants, motels, merchandise stores, service stations, etc.

Additionally, dozens upon dozens of valley youth look forward to earning a few dollars each summer by working at the Fair.

The Fair, quite obviously, serves as a major source of amusement to thousands of children and adults. The hundreds of displays and exhibitions are prepared for by an untold number of youth groups, all hoping for a ribbon or, in many cases, prize money — such as the farm animal competition.

A second area, aside from the actual exhibits, shows, displays and carnival, is the 12-day race meeting.

Everyone the least bit concerned with the Fair realizes that a large percentage of those people coming to Pleasanton each day come solely for the racing.

A cancellation of the race meeting— and the day of decision is THIS Sunday— would cause untold financial problems to Fair Association and horse owner coffers alike.

The money that valley businesses make off the "race crowd" will be sorely missed.

It is a damned unfortunate circumstance but one that is going to become reality if the HBPA and the Fair don't come to some agreement in the next 24 hours.

Letters to the Times

Kids today

Editor, The Times:

What has happened to the moral fiber of our youth today? Why do they hate their fellow man so greatly that their only desire is to destroy and hurt someone, anyone? Is anonymous destruction of someone else's property an outlet for exuberant youth or the workings of a sick mind? Why destroy public property that belongs to all of us, even them?

What reason, what defiance, what morbid thought passes through the minds of these immature beings when they place their empty beer bottles in the center of the street for anyone to run over? Do they feel a power, an exultation, experience an orgasm of destruction by doing this? If they do, I hope they read this and seek help before they destroy human lives for kicks or what ever other non-reason there is.

Bad news coach

To all involved in Little League,

Attention: Bad News Bears is now playing at the Pleasanton Little League Fields.

I witnessed one of the most disgusting acts of coaching this evening. I was not the only spectator who was angered.

I was under the impression that the kids were supposed to be playing the game of baseball because it was fun. If they lost the game its better luck next time, and if they won the game, its just icing on the cake.

This coach reminded me of some guy who couldn't make it in the big leagues, so he's going to prove himself in the little leagues.

I feel that the kids should have fun and learn at the same time. But apparently this coach feels his win record is more important than the kids who look to him for guidance, praise and support. I don't believe this man knows the meaning of those words. How sad, especially for the boys.

One of the nicer things said about this coach was; he should be removed from Little League. Not one person disagreed with that statement.

Isn't there some way the coaching staff can be screened so we can eliminate the self - proclaimed Big League Coaches?

Eight and nine year old boys don't need a second rate Charlie O. sitting on their bench.

The important question I am asking is this — How many kids are going to lose interest in the game before something is done?

Fitting memorial

Editor, The Times:

We wish to thank the public for coming and the boy scouts, cub scouts, and brownie scouts for participating in our annual Memorial Day services at Old St. Raymonds Church.

The hand made Bicentennial Flags made by Kathy Stokkeland were a welcome addition to the ceremonies. The veterans units did a fine job putting the program together.

Go Stoneridge

Editor, The Times:

As a resident of the Highland Oaks area of Pleasanton I have followed with interest the controversy over the Las Positas and Stoneridge overpasses. The idea of the city council taking $450,000 out of its proposed budget to build a pedestrian overpass to accommodate a small number of Foothill High students who choose to run across the freeway is ridiculous. Those students have bus service provided for them. According to Monday's Times the city can't afford stop lights on Main Street and the pedestrian over-pass. Should the whole city go without traffic control on Main St. because some parents can't control their children? It is obvious from a financial viewpoint that the Stoneridge overpass is best because of the agreement with the Stoneridge developer. The Stoneridge overpass will be needed for a direct route to the shopping center and won't go directly through any tracts of homes. An over-pass of any type at Las Positas is unnecessary. The city council was elected to lead the city and not a minority committee. Now is the time for the council to provide that leadership and get behind the Stoneridge overpass for all of the obvious financial and environmental reasons.

Wanted: murder

Editor, The Times:

As our volunteers continue to mop-up in the 1976 Cancer Crusade which aims to wipe out cancer in our lifetime, I would like to thank you for your public service effort in support of this annual educational and fund-raising effort conducted by the Amprican Cancer Society to support ongoing research, life-saving education and service to local patients.

Without such help in the dissemination of information, we would not be able to conduct this thrust against cancer which is called the "mysterious killer" because it often invades invisibly.

Every year we get a little closer to arresting cancer — it's wanted for murder.

Thank you for your contribution, thanks through your columns to our more than 10,000 volunteers in Contra Costa, and thanks to all Contra Costans who bring cancer control nearer by giving funds in the Cancer Crusade and to our Living Memorial Program.

LONDON — In this, our nation's bicentennial, what better way to salute the revolution than to visit the place where it all began? ... where the memory of George III is not only fresh, but the castle from whence he ruled the upstart colonies still stands, and where you can even visit the Tower from whence other upstarts once parted company with their heads.

It is all here. Spread along the banks of the Thames, tucked away behind great walls that separate busy 20th Century commerce from 16th Century history. The amazing thing is that Englishmen seem to take all three in casual stride ... commerce, history and the wall, without showing emotion for any.

Writers much better equipped than I have been unable to record London's story in a book, let alone a column or two; visitors since William's time have spent armies and wasted centuries trying to conquer this land. I do not expect to complete such a conquest in less than three weeks.

After just three exhausting days, a trip aboard a double-decker bus and another on river boat, linked together by trains that sped over the land or under it, I am prepared to assure you of the following ... London is not a city, it is legend; it is everything we expected, and so much more; it has beauty and pageantry and people and pigeons and trees in quantities that stagger the imagination. And it has history, oh my how it has history.

And, as the poet observed, for those of you who have been, any telling of mine would be unacceptable; for those who have never been, no written report is possible. But that won't keep me from trying.

Let's begin at Gatwick, where most of the charter flights to London land, and where also a high-speed electric train was parked, deep beneath the airfield, to carry us to Victoria Station in the heart of London. From that one transportation hub springs another array of surface and sub-surface transport ... including cabs that swarm like black ants throughout London ... all Austins, all without advertising or identification, and all able to complete a U-turn within any two standard traffic lanes.

"It's required," was the simple explanation. It is an answer that best describes much of what we were to see in the following days, and most of which made little sense. But, "It's required."

It is required that all pubs serve food, much of it delicious, and capped off with a glass of that wonderful English Lager, or if you are man enough, a mug of black Stout.

It is required that you carry an umbrella on even the sunniest of days, for you soon learn that the morning sun can quickly turn to an afternoon rain. This city's "longest drought in years" ended on the day we arrived. Without umbrellas.

"The land needs the moisture,"; our host tells us. But in the final flight to Gatwick Airport there was little but great stretches of green countryside below us ... carved into the most careful holdings, each with a house and barn. Not a single acre is wasted in England, a fact that becomes more evident as your train races through the residential and industrial suburbs toward the heart of the city.

We supposed that this too "is required."

Our first stop is in the City of Westminster, one of a score of burroughs that make up Greater London. While hardly typical of all London (and I suspect nothing is) Westminster is of interest because it probably parallels our California standard for "upper middle class suburbs not far from the Inner City." But with some remarkable differences.

Westminster seems to be all high-rise residential ... four stories of flats in a crazy-quilt of congestion that could easily be monotonous, if it weren't so terribly charming. Don't ask me how they do it ... if I knew I would hurry back with the magic formula for our own poor land planners.

Within that one little section off of Queen Anne street which has been our base of operations for this first week, there is for instance perhaps one thousand professional offices, most of them occupying the first floors of those four-story stacks of flats; there are also at least one hundred shops ... delightful little stores, dispensing everything from fresh fish to the latest fashions ... goods and services to meet almost any need ... and of course the inevitable corner pub.

Here then is "the complete neighborhood" ... providing all the comforts and needs of working class Englishmen including common greens and uncommon peace ... everything you could imagine EXCEPT a garage. Not even a car port.

In all of our travels around the City of Westminster, I have yet to see a public garage, high rise or underground. There seems, in fact, to be no place to park your car, save that limited curbside space.

"What on earth do you do with your cars?" I asked my host.

"What cars?" was the reply.

Suburban England not only has topped us with their marvelous use of the land, they have also managed to avoid "The Colony's" greatest failing ... they have avoided the private automobile. Buses, the underground, trains, bicycles and of course that great army of black cabs, take the people of Greater London anywhere they might choose to go. Just where they go, and why, I will endeavor to share with you in my next report.

MIKE ZAMPA

Dig it

Home landscaping is no longer in the realm of personal pastime or personal satisfaction. It is nigh on to a civic duty these days. If your front yard dichondra isn't worthy of a nurseryman's blue ribbon, you could be railroaded out of the homeowners' association.

Neighbors won't tolerate shoddy carpentry, cement finishing or gardening anywhere in the housing tract if it is visible from the street. Might jolt property values, you understand.

Fate holds nothing worse for the home buyer than to purchase the last model in a new development. Flora and fauna abound all around, while the proud, infant homeowners are engulfed by mesquite and mustard greens in their acreage.

Neighbors will overlook the blight for a week or two. Then come subtle hints. They start harmlessly with a suggestion to rototill, or rotoroot, I forget the exact phraseology.

One day a huge dandelion, chopped down in its prime, is dumped on the front porch with a note — "You will be next."

Finally, some Saturday morning, the entire male population of the housing tract appears at the front door, a ready mix concrete truck visible behind the mob, dumping its load where you had planned a fuschia bed.

The message is clear. If your tiny parcel hasn't been cultivated yet, switch off "The Game of the Week," and grab a shovel.

All of suburbia is sprucing up around the home. You should be too. And don't despair if you don't know where to start. Helpful hints follow that can carry you from first planting to that big barbecue

Start with a Retaining Wall. This is constructed if your lot is at a lower elevation than the neighbor's. The variation allows him to drain water, grass trimmings and assorted garbage into your yard, at the same time causing erosion and flooding.

Retaining walls build up your level, hopefully to a point where the runoff will reverse and flood the neighbor's basement.

Of course everyone needs fencing, and there are infinite varieties, from grape-stake, to alternating panels, also known as "Good Neighbor" fencing.

Remember, however the one true good neighbor fence is 72-feet of electrified barbed wire.

In pouring concrete, consider the available decorative finishes. The most popular is Exposed Aggregate. Be careful with this terminology because in home landscaping jargon it can mean one of two things. It is either a bare-rock finish on your sidewalk or a very kinky lawn party.

There are certain tools of the trade you must become familiar with, like Hoes, and Spades

You'll hear quite a few of the former from neighbors when they see your Bicentennial Garden, an American flag etched in cinnamon rock and juniper. You can see the latter on late night television. He has ill-fitting teeth and punches Peter Lorre quite often.

With preliminary steps out of the way, and the proper implements in hand, you can proceed with the planting of a beautiful yard.

There are endless selections in the plant world, but here are some suggestions.

Fruitless Mulberry — A straight shade tree.

Japanese Camellia — For $25 it committs Hara Kiri in your soil.

Pink Lady — Loose woman plying her trade in the "Home and Garden" section.

Once your are planted, fenced and cemented, there is only one item left to purchase for backyard enjoyment — a Hibachi. No, it isn't a tiny barbecue pit. Hibachi is the Oriental gardener who can rip out all your mistakes and landscape your yard the way you, and more importantly, the neighbors, want it.

Opening lead — Ace ♦

By Oswald & James Jacoby

The English pair of Rose and Forro took the early lead at the Cavendish invitational, only to falter in the stretch and fall back to seventh. Here is one of the hands that helped them off to their good start.

American pairs tend not to make a takeout double with too much strength in the opponent's bid suit, but the British double with all good hands, so Rose doubled West's heart opening bid. East adopted the rather doubtful strategy of leaping to four hearts to try to shut out the spade suit, but Forro did not cross the Atlantic Ocean to be shut out of the bidding. With the spirit that Nelson showed at Trafalgar and Wellington at Waterloo, he bid four spades.

Rose went right to six and there was no defense against the contract.

West led his ace of diamonds. Forro ruffed in dummy and led a trump to his queen. West held back his ace, but Forro simply led a second trump. West took his ace this time and led out his last trump, but Forro just claimed with the announcement, "I throw my last three diamonds on the long clubs."

Clarification due for trees

LIVERMORE — The city's Ancestral Tree ordinance will be sent back to khe planning commission and beautification committee for some "clean-up" wording.

The referral was requested by City Councilman Marshall Kamena following lenghty council discussion of the ordinance's spirit and letter in conjunction with an appeal to remove two front yard palm trees.

That appeal was denied by the council Monday night in accordance with the ordinance which protects the two trees by virtue of their size.

Kamena's objective is that findings necessary to grant an Ancestral Tree removal permit be "consistent and logical." Of particular concern to him is one of the four findings required for a permit stating that removal will not cause erosion or increased water flow of surface waters or pollution of adjacent water courses.

He contends this finding should not be listed as an independent requirement for removal but rather in conjungtion with the others findings necessary for removal — disease, allowance of reasonable use of a building site, and not substantially reducing the number of trees in a neighborhood.

In other business Monday night, the council:

- Continued to June 14 public hearings on the proposed rezoning of areas in the vicinity of I-580 and Portola Avenue and the addition of a noise element and scenic highway element to the city's General Plan. No public testimony was offered at Monday night's public hearings and the matters were continued for additional information.
- Set discussion of installing a bicycle route along East Avenue fronting on Robert Livermore Park as part of a special joint meeting June 17 with the Livermore Area Recreation and Park District.
- Adopted a resolution approving a tentative subdivision map submitted by David Madis for Trevarno Road.
- Granted an appeal of Henry Lopez for an encroachment permit for a fence at 1861 Helsinki Way.
- Re-confirmed its offer to purchase 2.4 acres adjoining Max Baer Park. The owners indicated they wanted to sell the entire 6.71 acres.
- Approved a layout plan for the extention of Railroad Avenue from S. P Street to E. Stanley Boulevard.
- Continued discussion of water reclamation plant capacity allocation.
- Set a public hearing for June 21 on adjustments to the business license tax surcharges which help finance the lease of the Merchants' Parking Lot.
- Authorized the purchase of .61 acres adjoining Christensen Park site.
- Granted the construction of a ceiling over the assistant city attorney's office for the purpose of privacy.
- Learned the assistant to the city manager, Don Bradley, is the recipient of one of 16 scholarships for a seminar this summer at Princeton University.
- Introducted an ordinance designating E. Stanley Boulevard as a truck route and also authorized the placing of new truck route signs along E. Stanley Boulevard, First Street (Hwy. 84) and Livermore Avenue.

Coaches' advice aids ex-Gael star

Sometimes a coaches' advice can change an athlete's whole career around and thats just what happened to Chabot College track star Greg Canfield.

The ex - Dublin High School athlete was advised by his Chabot coaches to go out for the Northern California Junior College Decathlon competition two months ago. Canfield did and as a result he now has a solid future in the event.

Canfield took second at the Northern California meet which was held at DeAnza College in Cupertino. He scored 6,136 points, amazing for an athlete competing in his first decathlon.

From there he advanced to the State Junior College Championships last weekend at Allan Hancock College where he finished third with a 6,710 total.

"My coaches said I should go out for the decathlon because they thought I had potential in it," the 6-4, 170 pound sophomore said. "I had never competed in some of the events before."

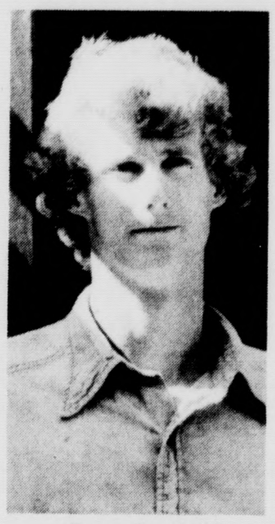
One of those events was the pole vault where Canfield still managed to clear 10 feet. He also admits he has some problems with the javelin and discus but thinks he can improve with more practice.

"I only threw the discus 65 feet in the Northern California meet," Canfield said. "I threw it 103 feet in the state competition but I could have done better. I've thrown it around 125 feet in practice."

The long jump and 100 meters are probably Canfield's strongest events. The Gael has long jumped 24-4 this season and in fact particpated in that event two weeks ago at the open state meet in Bakersfield. He leaped 23-6 at Dublin High.

Greg has run a 10.7 100 meters (about equal to a 9.8 100-yard dash) and would seem to have potential in that event also.

Like most decathlon competitors Canfield dislikes the 1500 meters, the last event of the rough two-day competition.



Greg Canfield

"It's hard," he admits. "It's the last event of the program and I had never run that event before the decathlons."

On the junior college level the decathlon is still a rare event and most athletes do not train that much for it.

"I didn't do any special workouts for them," Canfield said. "I just went in and did the events."

Canfield plans to do some distance running this summer to prepare himself better for the 1500 meters. He also plans to do some weightlifting.

"I'm going back to the Midwest to work with some heavy machinery," he said. "That should help me build up my strength."

As far as future plans go the Chabot athlete is interested in both Stanford and California.

"I really don't know that much about either school," he admitted. "I'm just going to have to wait and see."

Th wiry athlete should be able to rank among the country's best collegiate decathlon performers the next two seasons if he continues to have the vast improvement he's shown the past two months.

Of course it wouldn't hurt to have some more good advice from his coaches.

Livermore driver keeps improving

A ninth-place finish in last weekend's action moved Livermore's Rich Van Fossen into fifth place in the NASCAR-Winston Racing Series late model sportsman standings after eight weeks.

Heading into Saturday night's races at the Stockton Speedway, Van Fossen is uncertain whether his fortunes will continue to improve.

"I'm running a back-up motor right now," Van Fossen said of his 1964 Chevelle, "So, I can't really say how well I'll do. "But, next week, I'll have my killer engine back in," he laughed.

Van Fossen, who hasn't missed a race this season — and has no plans to — has 239 Points in the system that gives 50 points to the main event winner and lesser amounts to the remaining finalists. He trails leader Dan Reed, of Riverbank, by 123 points.

Qualifying begins Saturday at 7 p.m. for the dual main events, 20 laps on the high-banked asphalt oval track.

Film producers to cover Rodeo

This weekend's Livermore Rodeo may soon be seen on the motion picture screens of South Africa.

Campbell and Karg, motion picture produers from South Africa, have announced their intention of filming this year's event.

The producers plan to produce a sports feature which will be shown extensively in theaters throughout the African country.

Bob Eidson, activities director of the Professponal Rodeo Cowboys Association, selected the Livermore event for the filming.

One reson for Eidson's selection of the Livermore event is the split second timing which is responsible for it being regarded as the "world's fastest" rodeo.

With more chutes that many larger rodeos an and an almost flawless entry and exit system, the action at Livermore is continuous, an advantage motion pictures apparently prefer.

The motion picture crew will be working both tomorrow and Sunday

This is the second time the Livermore Rodeo has been selected for filming. Several years ago Bill Conrad and a large cast filmed portions of the pilot film for Cannon, CBS's popular detective show.

KENTUCKY STRAIGHT BOURBON WHISKY • 86 AND 80 PROOF • EARLY TIMES DISTILLERY CO., LOUISVILLE, KY. © ETDC 1976

These are the Times that prove our worth.

To celebrate the Bicentennial, we produced a limited number of ceramic decanters. We limited the number because we wanted the bottles to one day be collectors' items (and they will be). And quite honestly, we limited the number because we weren't sure if we would sell all we produced. There's so much talk about patriotism these days, mostly about the lack of it. Hogwash. If the sale of our Bicentennial bottles tells us anything, it's that Americans are still proud of their heritage. No sooner were the decanters put on sale than they were snapped up. And although we'd like to attribute our fine Kentucky bourbon as the reason, we really feel it was merely Americans wanting a piece of the Bicentennial as their very own.

1776 was when the great dream became a reality.

We honestly feel that our 200th birthday proves the dream came true.

Early Times. To know us is to love us.

Community hearing for The Ranches subdivision

DANVILLE — A special hearing on changes in plans for The Ranches subdivision here will be held within the next two weeks.

The San Ramon Valley Community Planning Committee decided this week it wants more community input before it takes a stand on the plan.

The committee also hopes to review plans for the G.L. Lewis Homes subdivision next to The Ranches at the special night meeting.

No date has been set for the meeting.

Committee members are concerned whether traffic circulation and other aspects of the two plans are compatible.

The two developments front on San Ramon Valley Boulevard next to the Town and Country shopping center.

The Ranches' tentative map has been approved, but its new owner, the Lawrie Development Company, wants to change portions of the plan and file a new map before Aug. 8 when the first one expires.

Instead of giving 180 acres of hillside land to the East Bay Regional Park District , Lawrie Development Co. wants to keep the land to construct a few homes on it later.

The local parks group would be offered a small park site, Don Lawrie said.

The company also wants to develop the commercial area along San Ramon Valley Boulevard as one parcel instead of selling it in pieces.

Another change would connect the subdivision with Sycamore Valley Road by way of the Lewis development.

Plans for 66 homes to be built on 41 acres remain the same.

The committee was receptive to changes in commercial development of The Ranches and the extension of Sycamore Valley Road, but displeaseQ that acreage might not be given to the regional park district.

"We've already approved the tentative map for the entire parcel. If you're going to change from that plan ... we'd all like to see that change is an improvement.

"It's not clear that change represents improvement and not a loss of public land," Eric Hasseltine, committee chairman said.

"You're cutting out a part (of the plans) that's very important to us," he added.

Other than that, the committee is in general agreement with the plan, he said.

In other action, the committee decided it would take a field trip Saturday morning to a proposed 61-lot subdivision off Stone Valley Road, Alamo, and approved a land use permit for a day care center at 155 Estates Drive, Danville, and division of 5.61 acres on Stone Valley Road at Peeble Court, Danville into four lots.

The committee also heard plans for the Hidden Oaks subdivisfon at Blackhawk Ranch, approved earlier by the advisory group

Purchase of Livermore land finalized with reluctance

LIVERMORE — Signatures finalizing the city's purchase of a six-lotisite adjacent to Pioneer Memorial Park have been put to the official document although the landowner was said to have had last - minute reservations on the deal.

The property, owned by Guy and Dorothy Willis, is at the southeast corner of Stanley Boulevard and Wall Street and has been purchased by the city for $21,000.

Serious negotiations for the property have been conducted since the beginning of the year and when the council indicated it was willing to purchase the site for an addition to Pioneer Park for $21,000, Willis agreed to the deal but disputed the price.

He later agreed to the offered purchase price and at the city council meeting Monday night, members were asked to adopt a resolution authorizing the execution of an agreement for the purchase of the property for $21,000.

Assistant City Attorney Gary Reiners, however, informed the council that in a series of telephone calls Monday afternoon, Willis continued to change his mind on the sale.

Reiners noted Willis' signature was on the agreement and was binding. All the council need do is authorize the mayor's signature, he said — which was the action taken.

The corner site had been zoned to allow either single family or multiple dwelling units and when neighbors recently learned of its designation, they approached the council for its purchase so it could remain undeveloped and part of Pioneer Memorial Park.

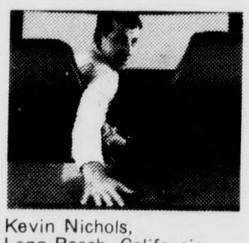
Some happy California Chevette owners talk about their cars.

GM MARK OF EXCELLENCE

Jane Saito, Wilmington, California.

"I was looking for a car that would save me gas and that's why I chose the Chevette."

36 MPG EPA Highway estimate. 27 MPG EPA City estimate. Chevette with available 1.6-litre engine, standard 4-speed manual transmission and 3.70 axle ratio. Actual mileage may vary depending on the type of driving you do, your driving habits, your car's condition and available equipment. Sound like the kind of savings you could use?



Kevin Nichols, Long Beach, California.

"It's bigger inside than I thought it would be . . . It's everything I thought it would be."

Chevette Coupe is the kind of car that just naturally makes people happy. Inside, it's got room for four people, with elbow and leg room to spare. Front seats are body-contoured buckets. The rear seat is full-foam, full-width.

"It does everything they said it would do. Roomy, good gas mileage, not a rough ride for a small car. It's all right!"

Raymond Andrews, Culver City, California.

Chevette power teams are combinations of economy and efficiency. The available engine is a 1.6-litre 4-cylinder overhead cam with the smoothness and quietness of hydraulic valve lifters. Standard transmission is a fully synchronized 4-speed manual. Turbo Hydra-matic is available.

Reinhart Lesser, Sherman Oaks, California.

"It's very well appointed... It has a wonderful turning radius."

Chevette has one of the smallest turning circles of any car in the world. Just 30.2 feet. Something you'll appreciate as you park and move through city traffic. Steering is a responsive rack-and-pinion system.

Louise Smith, Long Beach, California.

"This is my first small car, and I like it very much."

Chevette is built to keep people who are happy with it, happy for a long time to come. 17 different anti-corrosion methods are used in the building of its body: expensive epoxy paint, a wax base spray down underneath, galvanized metals, oil base coatings, zinc-rich primers, inner fender liners and other things to help every Chevette fight rust and wear.

Carol Hazelwood, Encino, California.

"We're a very tall family and we wanted a small car. We tried many cars and we couldn't fit in. I'm 6'2" and my husband is 6'5"."

What more can we say? Chevette is a very roomy car—a very efficient Chevrolet.

Chevette Chevrolet

It could make you a happy owner, too.
